

Are you a Community-Based Organization, Teacher or Pre-Service Teacher, or Government Agency Involved or Interested in Puget Sound Watershed Restoration or Stormwater Runoff Issues?

NOAA's Washington Watershed Education Teacher Training Program (WWETT) Grant Program for the Pacific Northwest

Service Education Adventure and Edmonds Community College Learn and Serve Environmental Anthropology Field (LEAF) School have received a National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) B-WET / Watershed Education Grant. We are currently recruiting teachers, school districts and teacher-preparation programs for involvement in the program. Benefits for participants will include

- no-cost marine based professional development workshops
- NOAA curriculum and materials
- partnership with NOAA scientist and other state and regional watershed agencies and organizations
- no-cost credit/clock hours
- mentoring support from EDCC Leaf students
- funding to get students in the field for watershed-focused service-learning and community-based learning experiences.
